

About the Competition:

The overall aim of the competition is to create awareness about the important role that predators play in our diverse eco-systems and this year we particularly want participants to highlight the threats to leopards in relation to drought challenges and habitat loss in the face of climate change. Each year the quality of the art competition entries improve and we are very excited to see what this year's entries will be.

The 9 winners (3 winners from 3 different age categories) will have the opportunity to attend an environmental education camp, with a friend of their choice, from Friday, 12th – Sunday, 14th October 2018 where they will experience the Cederberg first hand, and explore and learn about wilderness. This once in a life time opportunity will improve knowledge as well as promote good conservation practices and empower young people to develop a stronger relationship with the natural world.

Each winner will receive a copy of the 2019 calendar featuring their artwork, which will be presented when our environmental educators visit their schools to do a presentation about leopards and other animals of the Western Cape as part of the prize. In addition we choose 5 runners-up so as to ensure that there are enough artworks to create a complete calendar. Runners-up also get calendars and a presentation at their schools.
